In the event that the Webbear service has no limits on the capacity available to the customer (e.g. amount of data traffic, amount of working memory, amount of storage), the Webbear Fair Use Policy applies. The Webbear policy implies a maximum of two (2) times the capacity of the average use of comparable customers, under similar circumstances. Each month, Webbear determines this customer average.

- Using the storage space of your hosting account for purposes other than hosting a website.
- Sharing your hosting account publicly with others.
- Placing copyrighted content on your hosting account.
- Using your hosting account for file storage or file sharing.
- Using your hosting account for streaming.
- Using inefficient or heavy code that demands unreasonable resources from the server.
- Casino hosting.

The moment the fair use policy is exceeded, Webbear will contact the customer. If the this happens repeatedly (more than one (1) time), Webbear stands in its right to suspend the service, limit it or summon the customer to another product.
